

Natural Mama Disclaimer -

Natural Mama has written this blog and the information on the blog is only intended to provide general information to what I have learnt through trying natural remedies and natural products with my own family and friends. Natural Mama has done her own research and only provides general information and is not responsible for providing the medical advice that can only be provided by a qualified health practitioner. I always suggest that if you, your child, friend or family member is ill that you get the advice from a professional health practitioner on every occasion that you deem it to be necessary.
